81	Notes
82	Edward and Henry (1911) have characterized New A. as follows:
83
84	1. 1911
85	1911

11. The second, third, and fourth hypotheses are based on the assumption that the two groups of respondents would differ in the proportion of responses indicating the presence of a positive attitude toward the target. The first hypothesis was that the proportion of positive responses would be higher in the sample of respondents who were asked to respond to the survey than in the sample of respondents who were asked to respond to the survey.
