1. The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to understand the preferences and behaviors of potential customers.

2. Once a market need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept for the product. This involves brainstorming ideas and creating a rough sketch of the product.

3. The third step is to create a prototype. This is a physical model of the product that allows the designer to test and refine the design.

4. After the prototype is created, the next step is to conduct a feasibility study. This involves evaluating the technical, financial, and market viability of the product.

5. If the feasibility study is positive, the next step is to develop a business plan. This document outlines the marketing, financial, and operational strategies for the product.

6. The final step in the process is to launch the product. This involves manufacturing the product, distributing it to retailers, and promoting it to the target market.

(b) The 90th day after the record is filed.
