11. Defendant's expert, Dr. Alan C. Gelfand, testified that he found no reliable studies that supported or refuted the statement that the percentage of cigarette consumption equal to 10% of the total consumption was the highest risk level for lung cancer. Consequently, based on this fact, the jury is asked to determine whether it is more likely than not that the defendant's expert is correct.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of middle-aged men. The study was conducted in a community center in a large city. The participants were 40 men aged 45-60 years, who were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group participated in a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The control group did not participate in any training program. The physical fitness and health of the participants were measured at the beginning and end of the study. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health than the control group at the end of the study. The training program had a positive effect on the physical fitness and health of middle-aged men.
