Article 6. Article 6 is an additional article to be included as part of the Celiac Pet Project Non-Profit INC here- in. We want to expand the scope of the Celiac Pet Project to include any "Pet" project that can help Celiac patients. In these cases "pet" does not mean animals but rather may include any special project that a person or persons wishes to take on that seems reasonable and plausible that may potentially help celiac patients in the quest to eat truly gluten free foods. These "pet" projects are geared to insure that some core foods are not subject to cross contamination. Cross contamination means that supposedly gluten free foods get contaminated by being processed in plants that have gluten products nearby. Highly sensitive Celiac patients sometimes can not tolerate "so called" gluten free foods because of cross contamination. To hopefully solve this cross contamination problem special "pet" projects may be developed and or funded such as growing and processing olives in a totally gluten free environment that will insure a totally gluten free olive oil. Other projects that may be developed and funded include ideas and procedues to clean and or distill foods like beans, rice, honey and condiments like salt and pepper. to again provide totally gluten free products for highly sensitive Celiac patients. Lastly, any and all "pet" projects funded are subject to prior Board approval to insure all projects are geared to these goals outlined in this Article 6.
