Introducing the KORN, P.L. Asset Poison PillSM Plan

We all know the impact today's astronomical malpractice insurance rates are having on you as a physician. In fact, here in Florida where costs have exploded, many fine physicians are even considering moving their practices out of the state. Other physicians utilize Family Limited Partnerships for asset protection. But these only work by stripping you of control over your assets and restricting your access to them.

Sophisticated physicians across Florida have been adopting the KORN, P.L. Asset Poison Pill Plan because it is the only asset protection plan that not only places your assets beyond the reach of potential future creditors, but also deters them from ever seeking to attach your assets in the first place! At the same time, you retain complete control over your assets.

A Poison Pill for Asset Protection:

- State of the art creditor deterrence and protection
- Generally pays for itself within a year
- Very nominal carrying costs - state fees only
- Tax benefits
- Easy to implement and operate

Asset Poison Pill is a registered Service Mark of KORN, P.L.

To find out more about the KORN, P.L. Asset Poison PillSM Plan call Tyler Korn, Esq. for a complimentary consultation. 239-254-0400

Discover how the KORN, P.L. Asset Poison Pill Plan is vastly superior to any protection that is currently available to you.

Q & A with Tyler B. Korn, Esq. THE POISON PILL FOR ASSET PROTECTION

Q. Is asset protection for me?

A. Asset protection is always good common sense, but for the physician eager to reduce his or her malpractice insurance coverage because of increasingly burdensome premium costs, asset protection is a necessity.

Q. Can I wait until I actually have a creditor or lawsuit problem to protect my assets?

A. For the most part, no. (Florida's homestead protection is the primary exception.) Asset protection should be preventive medicine only. Under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfers Act adopted by Florida, any conversion or transfer made by a debtor with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud a creditor is invalid and will not be respected.

Q. Why couldn't I simply use a Family Limited Partnership for asset protection?

A. The problem with Family Limited Partnerships is that they only work by stripping you of control over your assets and restricting your access to them. Unless you are willing to have your assets "shut off" for an indeterminate amount of time while waiting for your creditor(s) to lose interest, a Family Limited Partnership is not an effective or viable solution.

Q. I've heard about offshore trusts and Alaska or Delaware trusts being used for asset protection. Do these work?

A. No. Since January 23, 2002, the date of the Landmark In re Lawrence ruling by the Eleventh Circuit, all possibility has vanished that genuine offshore trusts provide asset protection, unless you are willing to serve an indeterminate amount of time in prison as a result of being found in contempt of court. The same holds true for Alaska and Delaware trusts—they will not be respected in the State of Florida.

Q. What makes the Asset Poison Pill so vastly superior to all other asset protection plans that are currently available?

A. Deterrence and control. The Asset Poison Pill makes it financially suicidal for creditors to attach your assets in the first place, and it protects your assets even if they do. At all times, you retain complete control over your protected assets. Quite simply, there is no asset protection plan comparable to the Asset Poison Pill.

Q. How does this poison pill work?

A. A poison pill is a device that has been used by most publicly-traded companies in the U.S. for the last 20 years to protect themselves from having their assets looted in a hostile takeover. It is a tried-and-true anti-takeover device that KORN, P.L. has adapted, pioneered, and perfected to work for individual physicians. The Asset Poison Pill deters potential future creditors by "poisoning" your assets. This is harmless to your assets, but is able to impose impossibly burdensome obligations on creditors seeking to attach your assets. In so doing, it deters creditors from pursuing your assets in the first place and protects your assets even if they do.
