AIRMD

Healthy air for a healthy environment

Your Health is at risk

According to the scientific community, one of the keys to improving America's health is to improve our indoor environments.

Even the cleanest homes can have hidden toxins. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) ranks indoor air pollution among the top 5 environmental risks to public health. Statistics given by the EPA claim levels of airborne pollutants are 2.5 times as high as up to 100 times higher indoors than outside the home. This is startling considering the U.S. population spends 90% of their time indoors.

Be informed

Allergens are a key group of the indoor pollutants that act as triggers for asthma and other respiratory ailments. These agents include allergens from dust mites, cockroaches, fungi, mold, dander, hair and saliva from domestic pets and other animals, viruses, bacteria, and spores and materials from houseplants.

Various other non-biological pollutants can be the culprit for symptoms that mimic normal hay fever and other everyday problems. These pollutants include asbestos, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, pesticides, formaldehyde from furniture, carpets, and common cleaning products, radon, lead, and others.

Our scientific testing helps locate areas of risk in your environment.

Many harmful elements have been identified in the air.

You receive a comprehensive analysis from a certified laboratory

Call AIRMD 1 561.995.0036

The solution to your indoor environmental issues is a phone call away. Our certified and well equipped associate will visit your home. The testing procedure is non-intrusive, quick, and simple. Once the data is collected it is sent to a leading laboratories for analysis. A report is then sent to you which will cover all of our findings. It will include a set of resources that can support you in resolving any discovered problems and what type of preventive measures you can take to insure your home is healthy.
