Article V – Purpose and duration of company.

The purpose for which the company is formed is to engage in any lawful acts or activities for which limited liability companies may be formed under Section 608 of the Florida Statutes or any successor statute. The company shall have the authority to do all things necessary or appropriate to accomplish and operate its business as described in this Article, including, but not limited to such powers set forth in Section 608.404 of the Florida Statutes, as amended from time to time. The company shall have a perpetual existence.

Article VI - Restrictions on Member's Transferability

Except as otherwise permitted by this Article or the Operating Agreement, a new Member may be admitted into the Company only if: (i) all the other Members approve of such admission; and (ii) said new Member executes such instruments as the other Members determine are necessary or desirable to effect such admission and to confirm the agreement of the person or entity being admitted to be bound by all of the covenants, terms and conditions of the Operating Agreement then in effect. Provided, however, that a Member shall be entitled to transfer his or her interest, without the further consent of the other Members: (a) to a living trust or single member limited liability company for estate planning purposes, provided that the Member is the sole trustee or member of the entity and, in his or her capacity as an agent of the trust or company, the Member acknowledges his or her consent, as the agent, to bind the trust or company to the duties and responsibilities of the Company's Operating Agreement; or (2) to the surviving spouse or lineal descendants of the Member, pursuant to the laws of intestacy or testacy, as applicable, as determined by a probate proceeding (including a family administration, summary administration or formal probate) or a disposition of personal property without formal administration, provided that the heir or beneficiary, as applicable, acknowledges his or her consent to the duties and responsibilities of this Agreement and delivers such acknowledgment to the Manager.
