The Company must not engage in any business other than the rendering of professional architectural services; provided, however, nothing herein or in any provisions of existing law applicable to limited liability companies shall be interpreted to prohibit the Company from investing its funds in real estate, mortgages, stocks, bonds, or any other type of investments, or from owning real or personal property necessary for the rendering of professional services. The Company must not render professional services except through its members, officers, employees and agents who are duly licensed or otherwise legally authorized to render such professional services within Florida; provided, however, this provision shall not be interpreted to include in the term "employee," as used herein, clerks, secretaries, bookkeepers, technicians, and other assistants who are not usually and ordinarily considered by custom and practice to be rendering professional services to the public for which a license or other legal authorization is required; and provided further, that nothing contained herein shall be interpreted to require that the right of an individual to be a member of the Company is dependent upon the present or future existence of an employment relationship between him or her and the Company, or his or her present or future active participation in any capacity in the production of the income of the Company or in the performance of the services rendered by the Company.
