ATT: Leslie, Documents Specialist

Dear Leslie:

After speaking with a gentleman in your office last week, I was instructed to obtain and complete an Annual Report Form and send it along with a check and letter explaining its untimely delivery to your office.

Our company's 1997 federal tax extension was completed last month and the accountant questioned if there had been any changes in company's owners or address changes. In answering that question it occurred to me that it was customary to receive an annual report from the state of Florida that detailed that information. The report nor a copy was not found in any of our files which lead me to call your office a few weeks back.

We indeed did have a mailing address change. It is most likely that the address you originally mailed to was the previous mailing address and the correspondence was mis-fed in the forwarding system. I am aware of other mailed correspondence that we have not received as a result of the address change.

We are a small company and I personally keep the files and I honestly do not recall receiving the report form, nor do we have a copy of it, yet have copies of all Annual Reports since our beginning in 1989. The only logical explanation is the original report form was mailed to our previous mailing address and did not reach us because of some degree of mishandling in the forwarding system.

In that, please accept the enclosed as our filing requirements for 1998, as it is or was our intention to dissolve the company, and to the best of our knowledge did not receive the original 1998 Annual Report Form as in previous years. I respectfully appreciate your assistance and cooperation and apologize for any inconvenience.

Sincerely,

Scott Dobbs
President
