Subject: Proton International

Dear Ms. Sulker,

As you know, I represent Proton International, LLC, a Georgia limited liability company, and will serve as the Florida Registered Agent for the company. My client intends to start doing business in Florida, so we are registering the company with the Florida Department of State. Unfortunately, our first attempt mistakenly resulted in our forming the company as a Florida LLC, with Document Number L17000048102. As soon as I realized that was done, I filed Articles of Dissolution and submitted our registration as a foreign company. This will confirm that we would like to use the name "Proton International, LLC" in Florida, as an appropriately registered Georgia LLC despite our prior filing as a Florida LLC with the Department.

I trust this clears up this issue. If you have any questions, or need anything else, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Thanks,

David J. Davidson

Legal advice: Clients often have informal discussions with lawyers re the lawyer's sense of whether and how laws may apply. Those informal discussions do not constitute legal advice and should not be relied upon as such. The only way for someone to be assured by a lawyer in this firm regarding the foregoing is to (1) formally retain the firm, and (2) obtain a written research memo or legal opinion. Any purely verbal discussion on such matters is simply the lawyer's best (and unconfirmed) understanding and may not be relied on.
