Corporate Reinstatement

Dear Sir/Madame,

I am writing on behalf of my above referenced client. Taxpayer has advised me that they received correspondence that the corporation has been administratively dissolved. Taxpayer adamantly attests that they never received the Corporate renewal papers and unlike any other taxpayer they are not cognizant when these things are due without being advised or notified.

I realize that a second notice is usually sent, but they also did not receive this. I have known this taxpayer for years and know this taxpayer to be concerned and compliant. There would have been absolutely no reason for them not to complete and renew the annual report. The only explanation they can think of is that perhaps delivery if made was during a period when their usual mail carrier was on vacation or that indeed the forms were somehow lost.

Please kindly check your records. You will see they have always been prompt and compliant in renewing the annual corporate report. I have spoken to a representative in your office and explained this situation. I have been advised to have taxpayer complete the reinstatement form, send in the original appropriate fee of $150 for renewal and send a letter explaining the circumstance. We appeal to you and request that this will be acceptable, that no penalty will be assessed, and that the corporation will be reinstated with the payment of $150.

I have advised the taxpayer to mark their calendar reflecting when this renewal is due annually. As another safeguard I am also adding them to my file to monitor that this is taken care of, to avoid this from ever reoccurring.

Thank you for your kind consideration. I believe penalties and assessments are imposed to discourage those who would take advantage of our system, or try to ignore it. I know that this taxpayer does not fall into this category and hope that you will not penalize them for one of life's mishaps.

Very truly yours,
