Article VI Membership

Manner in which members are may be received into the church

Any person desiring to become member of the church should appear in person before the church to make application for membership, and the church may thereupon take such action upon the application as it sees fit. There are only three modes of admitting an individual to membership in a church:

1. By Baptism
2. By Letter
3. By Experience

Admission to membership by experience is only necessary when the party desiring such admission has at some previous time been baptized into a church, but for some legitimate cause is totally out of touch with the church and cannot therefore secure a letter of dismissal. Where parties cannot get letter of dismissal from a church, for instance, where the church has gone out of existence, or because of no special fault of their own, they should be received upon their relating a satisfactory Christian experience. In such case to be re baptized is not necessary.

When a person has been admitted to membership in a church, it is customary for the pastor, in the name of the church, to extend the right hand of fellowship.

In some localities, the right hand of fellowship is extended by all present at the service when the person joins the church. In others this is done at the communion service, just prior to the administering of the ordinance.
