Only Honorably Discharged or Medically Discharged veterans will qualify for assistance. The immediate families of servicemen and woman killed in the line of duty will also qualify for assistance. The funds that will be granted (not loaned) to these veterans and their families will be raised by accepting charitable contributions from the general public, businesses and corporations, government agencies and grants; and military active duty, veterans and retired personnel. Technically the funds will not be granted to the veterans themselves in the case of financial hardship, instead a check will be sent to the individual creditors owed. This will only take place after all the proper documentation has been provided and verified with the creditors. The veterans will also be required to sign an agreement for a period of two to five years requiring them to work with a financial advisor or planner to prevent the situation from happening again.
