The diagrams illustrate various methods to fold a rectangular sheet of paper into a triangle. The first shows a simple fold along the diagonal. The second shows a fold that creates a smaller rectangle within the original sheet. The third shows a fold that results in a triangle with a smaller rectangle attached to one side. The fourth shows a fold that creates a triangle with a smaller triangle attached to one side. The fifth shows a fold that results in a triangle with a smaller rectangle attached to one side, in a different orientation than the third diagram.
