As we have been giving classes in telecommunications for the past 15 years. We thought we should do something for the general good. Our idea is to offer a one week course at no cost to opportunity zones, correctional facilities, and active duty/transitioning veterans. The course overview is the first half of the day is into to course and outline, and then we go to a ten hour OSHA course which takes two to three days. We adhere to the OSHA standards for the ten hour course, and everyone who sticks it out receives an OSHA ten hour card for construction at the end of the ten hour safety course at no cost. After completion of ten hour course we have an intro to construction training course. We teach them basic stuff in introduction to construction. We also provide statistics on average first year laborer salary. We want them to realize that there is opportunity within the construction industry for a career. We will also hold a job fair upon course completion for entry level/upper level jobs for all attendants to the course.
