Dear Sir:

I am enclosing a copy of an information flyer we will be distributing upon completion of all necessary paperwork.

We had belonged to another group and are creating our own due to differences regarding training. We do have two certified search and rescue dogs in our group. Others are training and more will be certified in the fall.

Please let me know if we need to do anything else. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Kate Moore

Florida Search & Rescue Association (FSRA) is a non-profit organization that provides highly competent Search & Rescue Teams to those agencies that request our services. FSRA is comprised of volunteers that have a special bond between themselves and their dogs, along with the ability to work as a team to provide this specialty. There are team members who do not own dogs contributing other much needed services, such as base station communication, backup personnel on searches, information gatherers and more. You do not need to own a dog to belong, just have love and respect for them and the desire to help within the community.

The Search Teams work together drawing from the best capabilities of both dog and human. By teaching to while learning from each other, the teams are able to take the most direct route to the person or persons in need, saving precious time. Through the Search Teams efforts large areas such as fields can be covered in a very short time. All of the team dogs are worked long and hard on general rules and manners as well as intense agility preparing them for area searches in terrain unsafe for humans. To become a member of FSRA you must be willing to put forth the effort to provide this much needed service to the citizens of the State of Florida.

Since FSRA is an all voluntary and non-profit organization we rely heavily upon donations to defray costs of equipment, training and travel for team members.
Donations are greatly appreciated.
