To Whom It May Concern:

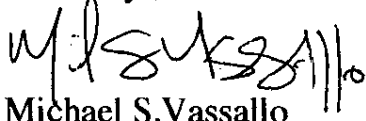

I was advised by a representative at the division of corp. to send a letter in regards to reinstatement fee I received. I submitted our report and made changes to the address printed on the in side of the report. I sent a check for $150.00 in on the 1- 16- 03.

One week later I received a letter back and my report stating that I still owed $750.00 for a reinstatement fee. That's when I called and spoke with the representative at the Division of corp. Threw talking with the representative

We discovered the form was sent out after we moved from our old location to our new one. We were moving and doing construction on our new location for about four months. I am not sure if the new tenants at the old location may have received it and threw it away. We had some difficulty not receiving other mail from other companies we work with as well. We thought we had resolved all of these mail problems we have had with this move. It seams as if we keep having things such as this pop up on us.

As a small business this unexpected and costly reinstatement fee would be very costly on our to the penny budget. The representative I spoke with was very helpful and told me to send a check for $ 150.00 a letter and we should be able to wave the reinstatement fee. This would help us considerably; the whole reason for us uprooting our business and downsizing our store was to cut the coast of our overhead to stay alive in this not so great economy.

Sincerely ,

Michael S. Vassallo
