I am a new corporation formed in the year 2000. I recently received a notice that I have until September 12th to file for the 2001 Uniform Business Report. I called my accountant to find out what this was for/about and he said that it was $150.00 annually and that because I didn't file in January, I was being charged a late fee. This was the first notice I have received and I am being charged a late fee. That doesn't seem right. I am a new corporation and I had no idea I was suppose to pay for a UBR in the beginning of the calendar year. A $400.00 late fee for something I was unaware of owing seems a bit absurd. I am sending a check for the original $150.00 due and am hoping you understand that I was unaware of a January through May deadline. I do understand for the future that this must be paid at the beginning of the year to avoid any penalties/late fees.

Sincerely,

Ranae Breslow
