Sirs:

After weeks of trying, I finally got to speak to an officer on your staff to state my dilemma. I can assure your officers that I never received a notice to reinstate in the mail at any time, it would not have been in my own best interest to ignore them. I only received this one notice, which was this notice of revocation, when it was already much too late.

I had no idea whatsoever of how the registration process works, and as such did not know that it was time for reinstatement. I beg your indulgence in this matter, and ask that you accept $150.00 payment from me, as I truly did not know the system or the rules, and had no notices sent by your offices delivered to me.

At no time would I renege on an agreement with you, as I need my business to continue. I would also say that since this is my first time at registering a company, please understand that without the required notices, I would be ignorant of the process. My business as you are aware is only a year old, it consists of only one truck, and to produce large sums of money is a little hard for me at this time.

Sirs, please endeavor to give me the relief that I seek from you. I apologize for the lateness of the enclosed $150.00, but I sincerely had no idea that I had this obligation to meet not only to your offices, but also to myself.

Again, please believe me when I say, that not only was I a novice, but I also had no notices delivered in the mail. Please allow my registration to continue, and my company to remain legal.

Sincerely,

Denise Munoz-Bennett
