To whom it may concern:

I, Heidi Lewis, am writing this letter in regards to filing my annual report/uniform business report. I am certain that I had reported my change of mailing address some time ago. Unfortunately I had not made precise notation of the date the change was made—I do know it has been almost six months or longer. In addition to my address not being updated the ONLY notification that I received from your office is the supposedly second notice, I have not yet to receive the first form. As a matter of fact the notice was sent to my old address. I have enclosed the original form of what I had received.

I had been previously informed by someone in your office that there is notice of this form sent out in January, I have not yet to receive that notice at this time, please advise. Is this correct? I am apparently receiving the wrong information. I would hope this letter will justify that this mistake was not intentional on my part and I don't feel that the Late Fee should be applied to this. Please consider my sincerity.

Sincerely,

Heidi Lewis
President
