To Whom It May Concern:

Today we received in the mail a notice of Administrative Dissolution or Revocation of our corporation, listed above. Our printed mailing address was spelled incorrectly; I have corrected it on the form I am enclosing here.

We are a very small, home-based company. The lawyer who filed our incorporation papers is no longer actively practicing law, and he never told us we had to file this form. I have not received any forms or notices previous to today. Perhaps this was due to the incorrect address.

I immediately telephoned your office and the lady with whom I spoke, who was extremely nice and very helpful, told me to write you this letter and enclose a check for the original filing fee, along with the application for reinstatement.

I apologize profusely for my mistake in not filing. I understand in the future that the form should arrive in the mail in January, but that if it does not, I should contact your office to request the form. I shall not fail to file the report in a timely fashion next year.

Thank you so much.

Very truly yours,

Julia G. Villalon, secretary to
Augusto Villalon Sr., President
