"We can turn your vacant home into a showplace".

To whom it may concern,

I plead ignorant. A prior notice may have certainly reached my mailbox. The notice looks familiar. I don't know what made me give recognition to this notice and not any that may have been received earlier. I am not only embarrassed of my neglecting to open and examine something that I have received in the mail but I am devastated at the amount of the late fees owed.

I purchased this business from a con artist back in April 2002. He will soon be doing time on a prior offence. I unfortunately have no recourse since I neglected in doing a thorough do-diligence, and consequently have no fraudulent documentation. This man was a past minister and present preacher so I simply took his "word". I had paid at least $100,000.00 cash more that I should have. I am not only struggling with the business, I am also struggling financially. I am therefore pleading with you to accept the $150.00 as payment in full and for you to wave the late fees and the reinstatement fee. I would greatly appreciate an act of clemency. And I can assure you that this notice will never go unnoticed again.

Thank you so much for your time and consideration in this matter. Please inform me of the decision made. Thank you again.

Sincerely,

Jacqueline Carstens
