To whom it may concern,

I received a postcard in January, mailed it in and it came back to me. I thought nothing more of it since it was returned to me.

I am new to being a business owner and did nothing. I have received another card and mailed it in and hired an accounting firm to help me understand what I am to be doing.

It has been explained to me what the card was for an annual report and the accountant down loaded the report for me. I also understand I owe a penalty of $ 400.00. I spoke to one of your agents and he suggested I send a letter in with the report explaining what happened so that perhaps the penalty would be waived.

With the help of the accounting firm I foresee no more problems and would appreciate a waiver of the penalty if possible.

Thank you for your attention,

Cynthia Hammen
