CORONLINE,

We placed a phone call to the department of corporations. The question asked was can we use this name since it is already in existence, but has not being active. The answer was YES, we can use the same name. The principal are the same in both instances, but he does not want to reinstate the company, but rather start from scratch. It is the same name, the same principal, but the president and vice president would like to start a new corporation. Please advice.

Thank you,
