K-Class shareholders have the right, but not the obligation, to purchase as many new shares of the stock being issued as it would take to maintain their proportional ownership in the corporation. Additionally, the corporation shall not issue or deliver unissued or treasury shares without first offering them to existing K-Class shareholders.

Each series of a class must be given a distinguishing designation. All shares of a series must have preferences, limitations, and relative rights identical with those of other shares of the same series and, except to the extent otherwise provided in the description of the series, of those of other series of the same class.

The power to issue initial shares is exclusively reserved to the initial directors at the Organizational Meeting of Directors. Thereafter, the power to issue shares is exclusively reserved to the shareholders, and the board of directors shall have no power to issue shares.

The power for the board of directors to authorize additional corporate shares, or effect a division or combination of the corporation's shares shall require shareholder action.
