The attached 7/17/97 letter requesting consideration, illustrates my plight. One of your very nice employees called me to tell me you would grant a late-charge refund of $385 due to this being the first year of your fee change, but in order for this to happen, I would have to send a formal request and a copy of my original letter, which as I said above, is attached. Please grant me a refund of $385 from my payment of $550+$8.75 for the Certificate of Status. This amount of $558.75 was mailed to you on 7/17/97 under separate cover.

I sincerely appreciate your help with this and will pay my annual fee promptly in the future whether I receive the notice or not now that I understand the procedure.

Thank-you very much,
Sincerely,

George L. Figley

To whom it may concern:

I am a small "S" corporation just getting started and after one year of operation, I am still trying to recover my start-up costs. In short I have yet to make a profit and now I am presented with a late filing fee of an additional $385.00 on your "Annual Report" form. Under the frequently asked questions section on your form, it states: "It is the responsibility--- on a timely basis; failure to receive the report is not an excuse for not filing---. Well, I never received the first notice, and my pleading ignorance of your rules is, I know, no excuse and too bad for me. You get another $385 for my "oversight". But, I never changed my address and was here to receive your mailing but it never came! How do I know you mailed it? How do you know you mailed it? It looks as though this can happen frequently and the State of Florida collects more money that is not justly due it. There is no way I can prove what I'm saying and you guys can just plead that " the law is the law" . I am asking for some consideration here. Put yourself in my place--how would you like it? I have been waiting for the form. I should have called and requested it, but now it is too late. Any help here would be appreciated. I would also appreciate a reply to this inquiry as to how I may handle this in the future and weather or not someone can waive the late charge under the above circumstances.

Thanking you in advance, I remain
