Annual Report

Dear Sir or Madam:

At the beginning of May 2004, we were notified by our client that his bank had denied the check he sent you in payment of the 2004 annual report.

We immediately printed a copy of the annual report that you had already posted on the web site and we sent you one of our checks to replace our client's bad check.

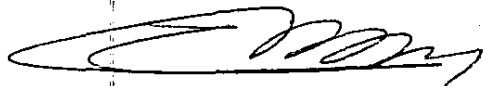

On May 21, you replied stating the document was already on file and you returned our check. Our understanding was that our client's check had finally cleared and the corporation was current.

We were quite surprised to receive a notice of dissolution for non payment of the annual fees.

In light of these facts, I would appreciate that you cancel the dissolution and accept a new check as payment of the 2004 annual report.

We had responded to you notification within the time allowed and should not be penalized for this miscommunication.

Sincerely,

Patrick Vivies, CPA PA
