A Solution You Can Measure

SkyeTec is devoted to the resolution of this serious national health problem. The method we have developed has proven itself in action.

We use a three-phase approach to creating a healthy indoor environment.

First, we identify the source (or sources) of the contamination. Second, we retard, remove, or remediate the contamination. Third, we prevent reoccurrence by correcting the environment that first propagated it.

These steps are all accomplished with a certified and licensed team of experts that is well-versed in not only the scientific and technical aspects of the job, but also in the safety and health issues related to this high-risk task.

For more details on our process, we encourage you to read the insert labeled "Remedies."

Our Technology

SkyeTec has combed the industry to find the best systems for indoor air purification and contamination removal. We wanted every confidence that we were offering our clients state-of-the-art technology that has a track record. We selected a dynamic process that uses photo-catalytic oxidation (PCO).

PCO uses ultraviolet light and a semiconductor photo catalyst (titanium dioxide) to mineralize VOCs and other contaminants. It breaks down toxic organic chemicals and destroys airborne bacteria, fungi, and viruses (including communicable diseases such as tuberculosis, streptococcal infections, and influenza...and hospital-acquired nosocomial infections such as staph).

PCO handles chlorinated compounds easily and has documented success in removing particulates, microorganisms, allergens, and organic-based odors.

This method has tremendous destruction efficiency in a single pass, uses a safe nontoxic catalyst, and creates no nitrogen oxides (a by-product of combustion). Additionally, no ionization or ozone is generated or introduced into the air during this process. PCO requires no auxiliary fuel, puts clean air back into the space while pollutants are being diluted and reduced, and completely destroys contaminants—preventing them from lying dormant and growing back.

PCO can kill 100 percent of bacteria in indoor air. We have found no method that works better.

When appropriate, we use HEPA filtration systems, carbon-based systems, electrostatic precipitator systems, and ionization technology.

We Are SkyeTec

SkyeTec is your most dedicated source for total indoor environmental solutions. We have integrated nationally recognized laboratories and diagnostic partners with cutting edge technology...always with our customers' health in mind.

We will conduct an initial on-site evaluation for individuals or corporations. During this evaluation, we can assess how to best apply our knowledge and technology to your environment.

If you're uncertain about the quality of your indoor air, call us to schedule this valuable evaluation for maintaining a healthy indoor environment for those who depend on you.

After your consultation with SkyeTec, you WILL breathe easier!
