What is a Sinkhole?

Sinkholes are a depression in land surface created by displacement of soil and/or ground water circulating and causing a solution of limestone. Sinkholes have always been a part of Florida life, but with the relatively recent population explosion, accompanied by rapid construction growth and the high amounts of water being pumped from Florida's water supply, the number of instances of property damage is escalating. L.R.E. Ground Services specializes in all types of sinkhole repairs.

Why choose L.R.E. for your needs?

Since 1989, L.R.E. Ground Services, Inc. has worked closely with leading geotechnical engineering firms throughout central Florida. L.R.E.'s highly trained and professional staff is available for pre-construction consultations with engineers to discuss projects in greater detail. Once construction begins, L.R.E.'s contractors and technicians work side-by-side to make sure residential and commercial projects meet industry specifications and standards. On-site, the company's uniformed technicians keep the work area clear of excess debris and are known for leaving the site neater than before work began. L.R.E. uses only the latest state of the art equipment and will custom-modify its equipment to meet the specific needs of a client or project.

Compaction Grouting

Compaction Grouting, or Soil Stabilization, is done by pumping cement into the ground through a steel casing under pressure to fill the voids or pores in the limestone. Once the voids or pores are filled, then compaction of the upper soils will be done by compressing the soil with the cement. Starting at the limestone area the steel casing will be extracted while pumping to compress the soil from limestone to the surface.

More specifically, L.R.E. Ground Services will use its state of the art drill-rigs, which were designed to work in all types of areas; to drill down to limestone and install two-to three inch diameter steel casings. (these are called grout injection points). Once the grout injection points are installed, L.R.E. will then have a pump crew mobilize on the premises to start pumping the cement through each injection point, one by one, until all of the injection points are completed.

Shallow - Surface Compaction

Shallow Surface compaction is done by pumping cement into the upper 5' to 10' soils. This is designed to permeate the upper soils to compact them. This is completed by installing a small diameter steel casing up to 1.25 inches. Using the small casing, L.R.E. will inject portland-based cement grout under low pressure and low volume to prevent damage to the structure. L.R.E. can also use chemical grouting, which can be either epoxy or polyurethane resin, for shallow-surface compaction projects.

Slab Jacking

Slab Jacking is done to fill voids between the slab of the structure and the soils that lay beneath the structure with cement. Once the void is filled, the slab can sometimes be lifted to its original state without the need for additional work. This is done by coring a 4" hole into the slab, and installing a grout injection plug into the hole. Once the cement is injected through the plug and the slab is lifted, L.R.E. will then turn off the valve on the plug and allow the cement to harden. The plug will then be removed and L.R.E. will smooth off the injection hole with cement.
